THIS 4,000-MILE TRIP TO HAWAII IS NO PLEASURE CRUISE.

Every year, as many as 15,000 live pigs are imported from Canada to Hawaii. They travel by truck to California ports and then by ship to Hawaii without ever leaving cramped, filthy containers for a week or longer. Those that survive the journey are slaughtered and sold as “Island Produced Pork” in supermarkets or served in restaurants and at luaus.

HELP END THIS CRUEL JOURNEY!

To improve animal welfare and reduce the risk of contamination and spread of diseases, Hawaiian markets, restaurants and hotels should tell their suppliers they only want meat from locally raised pigs or chilled or frozen meat imported from the mainland.

Handle with Care is a coalition of leading animal protection organizations around the world that have come together to stop long distance transport of animals for slaughter. Visit the website below to find out how you can help.
