This course is designed as an introduction to sociological research methods focusing on survey research. As sociologists, our focus will be the design, implementation, and interpretation of survey research based on standard practices in the field.

Lectures and course readings assume that students understand basic statistical concepts, but this is not a statistics course and the working assumption is that students do not have a statistics background.