ICS 491: Special Topics
T/R 1-2:15. Course website: www2.hawaii.edu/~sstill/ICS491S08.html

Instructor:
Susanna Still
POST 303 F
sstill@hawaii.edu
www2.hawaii.edu/~sstill/

Neuroinformatics and Machine Learning:
From synapses to algorithms. An Introduction.

Do you want to understand how the brain works?

Computer simulations and computational modeling can help us understand many important aspects of information processing in the nervous system.

Do you want to build machines that learn?

This class shows you in practical programming applications how the principles of information processing in the brain can be used to build adaptive algorithms.